FASHION OF NATURE

SUMMER 2027

BOL Summer 2027 maps what is missing from the summer wardrobe and responds with necessary rather than novel forms. A simple garment made with care and precisely cut is difficult to find: a T-shirt in natural silk, a tank top made with the same care as a dress, an A-line skirt with the right weight, or a dress defined by its shoulders. These are familiar pieces, reconsidered through proportion, construction, fabric and embroidery. Their clear, structured and sculptural silhouettes show both maturity and youthfulness.

Black and white define the collection's restraint, while cotton net, silk satin, viscose crêpe, traditional Romanian linen and silk lend the items a distinct surface, weight, degree of transparency and a natural, self-assured attitude.

The machine and hand embroideries, translated from flowers once given by friends, bring audacious colour – worked with a distinctly personal voice that holds, beneath its boldness, something quieter. Their changing forms are expressions of intimate gestures and moments, reflections on transience and fragility, gently keeping the memory of kindness once offered. Colour is used sparingly: a single accent of terracotta, pink, or crimson against an otherwise restrained chromatic range.

Made for everyday use, the clothes retain ease, clarity and harmony.
