Behind the collection

(Eng)

Among the world's finest storytellers, it is often said that two great schools compete to capture the hearts of the youngest artists in the house: the Botticelli school and the Bauhaus school. One champions classicism, good taste and the craftsmanship of tradition. The other stands for the avant-garde freedom, experimentation and bold creativity.

If you sense that your child might be a little Botticelli in the making, keep reading. Here you'll find ideas inspired by this school to decorate their walls with the elegance, charm and refinement of the Quattrocento.

If, on the other hand, you think your little one has more of a daring Bauhaus spirit, flip this book over and you'll discover bold strokes that will allow their imagination to soar.
